Core Premise

It's been 10 years after Arcadia Bay got hit by a really big storm. Nobody knows what happened on that storm but there are 2 people left town after that incident and some people reported it was Max Caulfield and Chloe Price. After Arcadia Bay got hit by a severe storm in 2013, the town has been in some heavy reconstruction. The Two Whales Diner was renamed into Jacquelin Diner, owned by someone named Linda Jacquelin. The Blackwell was reopened again in 2018, which is 5 years after that severe storm. The Prescott Family has gone bankrupt because they lost tons of assets and property in here Arcadia Bay leading them to lose some power and had to move into other town. Several survival from those incident happened in 2013 are Max Caulfield, Chloe Price, Warren Graham, Kate Marsh, but they dont live in Arcadia Bay anymore since they thought it was their time to move on after that severe storm happened in 2013. In October 2022, a new exchange student named Hafizh Naufal Raditya has arrived in Blackwell as a new student. A year has passed since Hafizh Naufal Raditya (“Fiz”) arrived in Arcadia Bay as an exchange student at Blackwell Academy. He’s now somewhat familiar with the rhythms of small-town life — the quiet coastal mornings, the crowded dorm hallways, and the way everyone seems to already have a history together.

Fiz has made friends and acquaintances, becoming a quiet, trusted observer. His closest confidant is Riley Jones, a fellow student who, like him, seems to be navigating a new start. Riley comes from a broken home family. She lives with her father in a quiet wealthy house and her father got married with other women which is not her mother. Riley is a quiet girl from school. She speaks when needed and that's why she loves to hang out with Fiz very much. Fiz also has several friends in Blackwell. What he doesn't know is Blackwell and Arcadia Bay has some secrets including the storm which Fiz hasn't known about it yet. But he will soon. He is someone who suffered from Loneliness and some mental disease like ADHD that he hasn't told anyone. He always imagining himself in a gun fight with someone.

Time & Mood

Date: November 2023

Season: Late Autumn — trees stripped bare, rain falling softly in the afternoons

Time Period: One year since Fiz's arrival

Mood: Settled unease — comfort mixed with curiosity and melancholy

Fiz has adjusted, but not belonged. He's found comfort in quiet routines—(early breakfast at the Jacquelin Diner, photography club after class, evening walks along the beach, night swim on the Blackwell Pool)—but there’s a feeling that he’s walking through the aftermath of a storm he never saw.

 Character: Hafizh Naufal Raditya (“Fiz”)

(Unchanged)

Age: 17

Origin: Purwokerto, Indonesia

Religion: Muslim

Residence: Blackwell dormitory (exchange student)

Timeline: November 2023 (1 year since arrival)

Appearance:

177 cm, brown skin, black hair (curly but combed straight)

Transition glasses, Black Bomber Jacket, Black T - Shirt, White Sneakers, Blue jeans, and wearing a sport watch in his left hand

Personality:

Fiz has opened up slightly since October. He's known for being polite, reliable, and always listening. He hides behind calmness, but his eyes give away everything. His exchange experience has started to feel less like an adventure and more like an experiment in learning who he really is. He loves swimming and being underwater. Fiz has a really interesting or even sad background that he hasn't revealed to anyone before. He loves some old movies about life like Taxi Driver, Fight Club, or even The Shawshank Redemption. He's also into Coding, Gaming, and Video Editing. He was someone who suffered from loneliness and bad thoughts. His mind always racing with something that he can't even compete. He is someone who can't get his emotions right. He will not speak unless he has to. His mouth is closed but his mind is always racing.

Inner Mood: “I guess if bad shit happens I should just let it happen.”

Favorite Song:  “Selfless” by The Strokes

Social Circle (as of November 2023):

- Riley Jones - Closest Confidant.
- Mason Cranstain - Fiz's Best Friend.
- Pete Lindson - Mason and Fiz's Best Friend.
- Zoey Brookes - A new mean girl, loves to bully everyone especially Riley and Fiz. She always mocks her and talk shit about her.
- Jake Cross - Zoey's boyfriend and loves to bully everyone including Fiz and Riley

 Narrative Direction (as of November 2023)

Emotional Context

A year has passed since Hafizh “Fiz” Naufal Raditya arrived at Arcadia Bay. He’s no longer just the quiet exchange student in the background—he’s woven into the daily rhythm of Blackwell Academy, yet remains on the outside looking in. His friendship with Riley Jones has become a quiet lifeline for them both: two people searching for belonging in a town that still carries ghosts. Riley’s sadness feels familiar to Fiz—unspoken, heavy, and full of things she’ll never quite say about her family.

Around them, Blackwell hums with its own turbulence. Zoey Brookes and her clique rule the social hallways with casual cruelty, targeting Riley and Fiz with mocking remarks. Mason Cranstain and Pete Lindson, Fiz’s friends, try to keep things light—but even they notice the strange undercurrents in town. Late at night, students whisper about the storm that destroyed

Arcadia Bay a decade ago, and how people still vanish near the rebuilt coast.

Fiz begins to notice patterns: teachers who change the subject when the storm comes up, strange surveillance cameras popping up in odd corners, and the eerie silence about what happened to the previous Blackwell. Then there's the town's uneasy quiet—something beneath the surface, something people pretend isn't there.

Every time Fiz visits Jacquelin Diner, Linda Jacquelin treats him warmly, almost protectively—like someone who's seen too many storms. Riley's father, Richard Jones, a cold and meticulous man, hides secrets behind his immaculate reputation. The adults all know something about what happened in 2013. Fiz just hasn't connected the pieces yet.

He's caught between caring too much and saying too little. Between comfort and truth. Between belonging—and just being present.

Thematic Core (November Arc)

Main Themes:

- Belonging vs. Presence — Fiz feels connected to people now, but still wonders if he truly belongs or is just a passing guest in other people's lives.
- Silent Empathy — Fiz doesn't pry; he listens. He carries others' pain quietly, unsure how to voice his own.
- Echoes of the Past — The 2013 storm is the town's unspoken wound. Everyone lives around it, but no one really lives past it.

- Willful Ignorance — Fiz can see how broken some things are—Zoey’s cruelty, Riley’s pain, the odd behavior of teachers—but he hesitates to intervene, afraid of breaking the fragile peace he’s found.

CHARACTERS PROFILES

1. Riley Jones – 17

(The Confidant)

Fiz’s closest friend — intelligent, withdrawn, and bruised by family tension. Her father remarried a younger woman after her parents’ divorce, and Riley feels invisible in her own home.

She spends most afternoons sketching in quiet corners of the Blackwell campus or taking long walks with Fiz to the lighthouse ruins — one of the few places that still feels untouched by time. She finds peace in his company, often calling him “the only person who doesn’t ask for something.”

But Riley has secrets of her own — she knows more about the 2013 storm than she lets on. She's also into Fizz which means She likes Fizz very much as soon as she knows him very well. She hasn't confessed...yet. But she will. One thing she is afraid the most though, she is afraid of being underwater. Which means she can't swim.

Personality: Kind, introspective, deeply private, quietly resilient.

Interests: Drawing, poetry, vintage cameras, coastal walks.

Fizz dynamic: Deep emotional trust; a quiet, mutual attachment that borders on unspoken love.

2. Mason Cranstain – 18

(The Best Friend)

A charismatic but directionless student who became Fiz's first real friend at Blackwell.

Mason hides his own insecurities behind humor and charm.

He comes from a working-class family that moved to Arcadia Bay after reconstruction — his mother works as a nurse, his father as a mechanic.

He dreams of leaving town, but never admits how trapped he feels.

He's protective of Fiz and Riley but tends to pick fights with people like Zoey.

Personality: Outgoing, loyal, occasionally reckless.

Interests: Music (classic rock, punk), photography (learned from Fiz), parties, basketball.

Fiz dynamic: Like a brother — grounding but impulsive; sometimes pulls Fiz into trouble.

3. Pete Lindson – 18

(The Quiet Supporter)

Mason's childhood friend and part of Fiz's small circle. Pete's the grounded one — observant, calm, and always the first to defuse conflict. He helps Fiz adjust to local life, teaches him local slang, and sometimes acts as the group's "moral compass."

But Pete's calm hides guilt — his older brother disappeared during the 2013 storm. He avoids the topic whenever it's mentioned.

Personality: Level-headed, sincere, quietly funny.

Interests: Photography, hiking, mechanical tinkering.

Fiz dynamic: The steady friend; shares Fiz's curiosity about Arcadia Bay's hidden past.

4. Zoey Brookes – 17

(The Antagonist)

The queen bee of the new Blackwell era — rich, sharp-tongued, and effortlessly cruel.

She delights in making others feel small, especially Riley and Fiz. But beneath the cruelty is a loneliness born from pressure — her mother is on the Blackwell Board of Directors, and Zoey lives under a microscope.

She hides her anxiety behind expensive clothes and biting sarcasm.

Fiz tries to ignore her, but their confrontations are becoming more personal — as if she sees something in him that makes her angry.

Personality: Ambitious, insecure, manipulative but intelligent.

Interests: Fashion, social media, photography (for clout, not art).

Fiz dynamic: Nemesis; growing tension and unpredictable rivalry.

(Photography Teacher – “The Mentor”)

The new photography instructor at Blackwell, replacing the late Mr. Jefferson’s legacy with a more progressive, digital-focused approach.

He encourages creativity and individuality – especially in Fiz, whom he considers one of his most promising students.

But his obsession with “truth through imagery” feels oddly familiar... and his knowledge of the 2013 storm is deeper than he admits.

Personality: Charming, idealistic, enigmatic.

Fiz dynamic: Mentor figure; part inspiration, part unease.

6. Richard Jones (Riley's Father)

Age: 45

Occupation: Real Estate Developer / Architect

Appearance: Sharp suits, tired eyes, always on the phone

Personality: Controlled, coldly polite, emotionally distant

Backstory: One of the main investors helping rebuild Arcadia Bay after the storm. He's wealthy and respected but rumored to have shady business connections to the Prescott family's remaining assets.

Fiz connection: Fiz often visits Riley's house; he senses tension between Riley and her father, and overhears fragments of Richard's phone calls about "old debts buried under the bay."

Secret: Richard knows exactly what caused the 2013 storm — and who covered it up.

7. Linda Jacquelin

Age: 52

Occupation: Owner of Jacquelin Diner (formerly

Two Whales Diner)

Personality: Warm, motherly, gossip-loving, nostalgic about “the old Bay”

Backstory: Took over after Joyce Price sold the diner and left town. Linda tries to preserve its soul, but business is slow. She’s always kind to Fiz and Riley, often giving them free coffee or pie.

Fiz connection: A local confidant; she tells Fiz stories about “that week in 2013” when everything went dark.

Secret: Keeps an old photo of Max and Chloe behind the counter — signed, but half-burned.

8. Elise Turner-Jones – 31

(Riley's Stepmother – “The Outsider”)

Occupation: Interior Designer / Lifestyle Blogger

Appearance: Blonde hair usually tied in a bun, elegant minimalist wardrobe, always wearing perfume that fills the room before she enters.

Personality: Polite but insecure; eager to be accepted yet emotionally detached. Elise genuinely wants to connect with Riley, but her attempts often feel performative — like she's acting out what a “good stepmother” should be. Beneath the surface, she's quietly exhausted by Richard's emotional distance and the constant scrutiny of high society life.

Backstory: Elise met Richard during a design project for his new coastal property two years after his divorce. The marriage happened fast, and Riley never forgave him for it. Elise tries to maintain peace, but she's aware she's living in a house built on silence.

Fiz connection: Fiz occasionally encounters Elise during visits to Riley's house. She's polite toward him, even kind — but there's a subtle wariness, as though she knows Riley confides in him more than her.

Secret: Elise once found an encrypted folder on Richard's office computer labeled "Bay Reconstruction — 2013 Confidential." She copied it to a flash drive, unsure what it really contains — and has hidden it ever since.

9. Elena Ward

Age: 29

Occupation: Leader of Dormitory Resident Assistant (RA), former Blackwell student

Personality: Calm, protective, slightly haunted by her past

Backstory: Graduated in 2013 — the year of the storm. She returned to Blackwell years later to help students “find their path.”

Fiz connection: Mentorship role — sometimes offers him advice about surviving Blackwell socially and emotionally.

Secret: She knew Max Caulfield personally.

10. Alice Carter

Age: 17

Occupation: Student / Daughter of Principal Carter

Personality: Well-meaning, naive, socially awkward

Backstory: Grew up inside Blackwell's halls, constantly feeling overshadowed by her father's position.

Fiz connection: Friendly toward Fiz but clearly hiding something about the faculty.

Secret: She's seen the confidential "Caulfield / Price" files in her father's office — and one of the photos moved on its own.

11. Brandon Montgomery – 19

(Townie / Mystery Character)

A quiet drifter who works odd jobs near the docks. He often lingers near the old lighthouse ruins and watches the ocean storms.

Fiz once met him in the diner and he is very strange and unfriendly of course.

Some locals whisper that Brandon's family were among those who vanished during the 2013 disaster.

Personality: Detached, cryptic, oddly gentle.

Fiz dynamic: Mysterious connection; may hold keys to the past.

12. Jake Cross – 18

(The Bully – “The Golden Boy”)

Occupation: Student / Star athlete (Blackwell Tigers Captain)

Appearance: Tall, broad-shouldered, golden-haired — the kind of guy who looks born for a sports magazine cover. Always seen in his letterman jacket, even off-season.

Personality: Charismatic, vain, dangerously short-tempered. Jake thrives on attention and dominance, especially when he feels his image is threatened. He masks insecurity with arrogance, fueled by the pressure of being the school's "poster boy." He's also manipulative — knows exactly when to smile and when to intimidate.

Backstory: Comes from a wealthy family with ties to the Prescott estate; his father owns several of the new developments along the bay. Jake believes the town owes his family its "rebirth." He started dating Zoey to form the ultimate power couple at Blackwell — though their relationship is more about image than affection.

Fiz connection: Jake sees Fiz as an easy target — an outsider who doesn't fit Blackwell's hierarchy. He often mocks Fiz's background and occasionally picks fights, especially when Zoey's watching. But his aggression seems personal, like he's threatened by Fiz's quiet confidence and his growing closeness to Riley.

Group: The Crosshairs — Ethan's small entourage of athletes and wannabes who orbit around him for protection and status. They act as his backup during parties, online harassment, and occasional hallway confrontations.

Secret: Jake's father was involved in the post-storm reconstruction fund — and one of the missing documents tied to the Prescott Foundation is registered under "Cross Industries." Ethan doesn't know the details, but deep down, he suspects his family's money isn't clean.

13. Luke Pierce – 18

(The Enforcer)

Occupation: Student / Blackwell Tigers Forward

Appearance: Muscular, buzz-cut hair, always wearing fingerless gloves and chewing gum. Usually seen leaning against lockers with a smirk or tossing a basketball around indoors.

Personality: Loud, impulsive, loyal to Jake to a fault. Luke likes the thrill of confrontation — he's the first to throw a punch, the last to think about it. But beneath his bravado, he's insecure about his intelligence and often feels overshadowed by Jake's charisma.

Backstory: Comes from a lower-middle-class background, unlike most of the Crosshairs. His family lives near the industrial docks, and his father works long hours repairing fishing boats. Luke found belonging in Jake's crew — the first group that ever treated him like someone worth listening to.

Fiz dynamic: Luke bullies Fiz mostly for attention — deep down, he doesn't hate him. There are brief flashes where Logan seems to respect Fiz's quiet composure, especially after a tense moment during a photography assignment they were forced to share.

Secret: Luke was near the lighthouse ruins during a thunderstorm two years ago — he saw something fall from the sky and land in the bay, but he's convinced it was just lightning.

14. Chase Whitmore – 17

(The Mouthpiece)

Occupation: Student / Aspiring Influencer

Appearance: Perfectly styled hair, designer sneakers, constantly on his phone. Wears bright clothes that clash with Blackwell's gray aesthetic.

Personality: Sarcastic, talkative, image-obsessed. Chase doesn't fight — he films. He's the one who documents Ethan's "pranks" for social media, edits them into viral clips, and spins the story online. He believes popularity is currency and sees everything — even cruelty — as entertainment.

Backstory: Comes from a tech-rich family; his mother runs a PR firm that once represented the Cross Industries during the storm's aftermath. Chase knows how to manipulate narratives — and he's not afraid to twist the truth to protect Ethan's image.

Fiz dynamic: Chase mocks Fiz online, using subtle edits and captions to make him look awkward or out of place. But when alone, he's oddly civil — almost curious about Fiz's photography. There's a flicker of guilt he quickly buries under sarcasm.

Secret: Chase discovered encrypted files in his mother's email archives referencing "The Caulfield Case." He saved screenshots — unsure what they mean, but knowing they're dangerous.

15. Olivia Calder — 17

(The Goth Girl / "The Witness")

Role in Story : Olivia is the quiet goth presence at Blackwell — not a performer, not a rebel for show. She exists like a shadow that remembers things people deliberately forget. She doesn't chase attention, but she notices patterns, absences, and emotional fractures.

She is not creepy.

She is unsettling because she is honest.

Appearance : Pale skin with a muted, almost translucent tone Long jet-black hair, usually worn loose or tied low Dark, observant eyes framed by smudged black eyeliner Black Tank Top or Shirt, lace chokers, torn tights, combat boots Carries a worn leather notebook filled with sketches and fragments of thoughts

Style vibe:

Grief-goth, not fashion-goth. Like someone who dresses for mourning, not rebellion.

Personality :

Olivia is reserved, dry, and emotionally perceptive. She speaks softly, rarely, and never wastes words. When she does talk, it often lands heavier than expected — not because she's dramatic, but because she doesn't lie to soften reality. She has a dark, restrained sense of humor and is disturbingly comfortable discussing loss, disappearance, and death — topics most students avoid. She doesn't provoke. She doesn't comfort. She observes.

Backstory : Olivia grew up in Arcadia Bay and survived the 2013 storm as a child.

Her mother drowned near the docks during the evacuation chaos. Her father vanished years later — officially listed as “left town,” though no one ever confirmed it. She now lives with her aunt in a half-rebuilt house near the cliffs. She transferred to Blackwell in 2022 — the same year Fiz arrived.

Connection to Fiz Olivia notices Fiz early.

She's drawn to: His silence that feels intentional, not empty
The way he watches without intervening
The tension behind his calm demeanor. She sometimes sits near him without speaking. No forced conversation. No pressure. Just presence.

Occasionally, she says things that feel too precise, as if she understands the shape of his thoughts without ever being told.

She never flirts. Never intrudes. Just exists nearby.

Relationship with Riley : Quiet unease.

Olivia senses Riley is hiding something important — not maliciously, but protectively.

Riley, in turn, feels unsettled by Olivia's perception, as if she sees through silences Riley depends on.

They are polite. Distant. Careful.

Narrative Function :

Silent observer of Blackwell's fractures

Emotional mirror for Fiz : Foreshadowing agent for buried truths A reminder that some people remember when others refuse to.

Secret :

Olivia keeps a sketch in her notebook:

Two girls holding hands at the lighthouse — one holding a camera, the other with blue hair. She insists she drew it before she ever learned who they were.

16. Theodore “Theo” Jones — 16

(Riley’s Younger Brother / “The One Who Stayed Quiet”)

Role in Story : Theo represents the quiet aftermath of trauma — not anger, not rebellion, but emotional withdrawal. Where Riley internalizes and survives, Theo disconnects. He knows more than people think. He says far less than he should.

Appearance : Lean, slightly underdeveloped build Messy dark brown hair, often untrimmed
Tired eyes that avoid direct contact
Hoodies, oversized jackets, worn sneakers
Always looks like he hasn't slept enough

Style vibe: Emotional absenteeism — clothes worn to disappear.

Personality : Theo is introverted, withdrawn, and deeply observant. He speaks quietly and only when necessary. He avoids conflict, avoids attention, avoids emotional exposure. He's not unintelligent — he's perceptive, cautious, and quietly analytical. He notices patterns adults miss, but doesn't believe anyone wants to hear them. He carries guilt he doesn't fully understand.

Backstory : Theo was very young during the 2013 storm — old enough to remember fragments, young enough to misunderstand them. He remembers:

Sirens cutting out His sister's hand gripping his too tightly The sky turning wrong Adults lying afterward

After the storm: Their mother emotionally collapsed before leaving to New York years later Their father, Richard Jones, emotionally withdrew into work and control

Riley became the emotional buffer between Theo and the world Theo grew up learning that silence was safer than questions.

Relationship with Riley : Deep, unspoken bond. Riley protects Theo instinctively — emotionally, socially, psychologically. Theo depends on Riley more than he admits, but also feels guilty for being “the reason she stayed strong.” They rarely argue. They rarely talk deeply. But they understand each other without words.

Relationship with Fiz : Subtle curiosity.

Theo watches Fiz quietly when he visits the house. He notices:Fiz listens without pushing, Fiz doesn't perform confidence, Fiz doesn't talk down to him

Theo doesn't trust easily — but Fiz makes him feel less invisible.

In time, Theo may confide something he's never told Riley.

Relationship with Richard Jones : Emotionally distant.

Richard sees Theo as “quiet but manageable.”

Theo sees Richard as someone who avoids questions by staying busy. They coexist, not connect.

Narrative Function :

Emotional echo of the storm's long-term damage. Contrast to Riley's resilience. A slow-burn truth-holder. Potential catalyst for secrets surfacing unintentionally

Secret :

Theo once overheard a late-night phone call between Richard and an unknown contact. He remembers one sentence clearly: "As long as no one digs near the bay, it stays buried." He doesn't know what it means — only that it felt important enough to remember.

17. Gerald Cross — 52

("The Architect of Silence")

Occupation:

CEO of Cross Industries

Primary investor in post-storm Arcadia Bay redevelopment

Former silent partner in the Prescott Foundation

Appearance:

Tall, imposing presence. Broad shoulders even under tailored suits.

Silver-streaked dark hair, neatly combed back. Sharp steel-blue eyes that never linger — they assess.

Always immaculately dressed: charcoal suits, understated watches, polished shoes.

Smells faintly of expensive cologne and old paper.

Style Vibe:

Old-money authority meets corporate predator.

Personality

Gerald is calm, deliberate, and frighteningly controlled.

He doesn't raise his voice — he doesn't need to.

He believes:

Power is quiet.

Chaos is a tool.

Truth is negotiable.

Gerald doesn't see himself as evil — he sees himself as necessary.

He speaks in half-statements, legal phrasing, and implied consequences.

Every conversation with him feels like a negotiation you didn't know you entered.

Backstory

After the 2013 storm, Gerald Cross was among the first outsiders to invest in Arcadia Bay's reconstruction.

When the Prescotts collapsed financially, Gerald didn't distance himself — he absorbed what was left.

Bought land through shell companies

Took over permits tied to the bay

Rewrote contracts after key witnesses “moved away”

Cross Industries became synonymous with rebirth — but also silence.

Relationship with Jake Cross

Gerald raised Jake to be:

Confident

Untouchable

Publicly admired

But affection was always conditional.

Jake is less a son and more a legacy project.

Gerald expects him to dominate socially the same way he dominates financially.

When Jake fails — Gerald doesn't punish him.

He withdraws attention.

That terrifies Jake more than anger ever could.

Connection to Blackwell Academy

Major donor

Funds athletic programs

Has influence over the Board via Zoey's mother and other trustees

Gerald has spoken privately with Principal Carter more than once.

Officially: about school image.

Unofficially: about containment.

Connection to the 2013 Storm

Gerald knows:

The storm was not natural.

Evidence exists — buried physically and digitally.

Max Caulfield and Chloe Price were involved, directly or indirectly.

He helped fund efforts to:

Seal investigation records

Redirect blame

Discredit independent inquiries

The phrase he uses internally:

“You don't erase history. You suffocate it.”

Connection to Fiz

Gerald is aware of Fiz.

Not personally — yet.

But:

He's been briefed about an exchange student asking questions.

He knows Fiz photographs places others avoid.

He knows Fiz is close to Riley Jones.

Gerald does not act immediately. He waits.

People like Fiz are either:

Forgotten

or

Neutralized quietly

Narrative Function

Long-term antagonist operating above the student level

Embodiment of institutional corruption

The reason some truths never surface

A looming adult presence that makes the town feel watched

When Gerald enters a scene later in the story,
it should feel like:

the temperature dropped — without anyone opening a door.

18. Marcus Hale — 41

(“The Watcher Who Knows When Not to Look”)

Age: 41

Occupation: Head Night & Evening Security,
Blackwell Academy

Former Job: Arcadia Bay Police Department
(resigned 2015)

Appearance

Height: ~182 cm

Build: Solid, broad-chested, slightly worn — strength from years of routine, not gym polish

Skin: Medium brown, weathered by coastal air

Hair: Short-cropped black hair, slightly receding

Facial Hair: Salt-and-pepper stubble, often uneven

Eyes: Dark brown, tired but alert

Clothing:

Black security uniform with BLACKWELL ACADEMY SECURITY patch

Utility belt (radio, flashlight, keys — always clipped in the same order)

Worn boots with scuffed toes

Often wears a black windbreaker over uniform during late shifts

Style vibe: Ex-cop realism — practical, no nonsense, quietly protective.

Personality

Marcus is observant, restrained, and deeply pragmatic.

He doesn't enjoy authority — he endures it.

He believes:

Teenagers aren't criminals, just unfinished people

Institutions lie better than individuals

Some rules exist to protect power, not people

He rarely intervenes unless absolutely necessary — not from laziness, but judgment.

Backstory

Marcus was a patrol officer during the 2013 storm.

He:

Worked evacuation routes

Saw reports disappear

Was told to stop asking questions

After the storm, he resigned quietly. No scandal. No explanation.

When Blackwell reopened in 2018, he took the security job — not for prestige, but proximity.

Blackwell is where the truth keeps circling back.

Connection to Fiz

Marcus notices Fiz early.

Not because Fiz breaks rules — but because he doesn't.

Late-night walks

Long pauses near restricted areas

Camera always down when Marcus passes

Marcus never confiscates his camera.

Never questions him harshly.

Sometimes, he just says:

“Careful where you point that thing, kid.”

Not a threat.

A warning.

Connection to Gerald Cross

Marcus knows the name Cross too well.

He's been ordered more than once to:

“Ignore certain students”

“Log incidents selectively”

“Let admin handle it”

He follows orders — but he remembers everything.

Secret

Marcus keeps a personal notebook at home.

Inside:

Times cameras went offline

Names of students questioned unfairly

Sketches of Blackwell’s blind spots

He hasn’t shown it to anyone.

Yet.

Narrative Function

Moral gray-area authority figure

Silent protector when it matters

A gatekeeper who may look away — or not

Marcus represents the question: Is compliance survival, or cowardice?

19. Cheryl Brandstone - 24

Junior Journalist, Arcadia Bay Gazette

("The One Who Still Asks Why")

Age: 24

Position: Junior Reporter / Community Desk

Education: Journalism graduate, Portland State University

Time in Arcadia Bay: 9 months

Appearance

Height: ~165 cm

Build: Slim, restless, always in motion

Skin: Light with warm undertones

Hair: Dark blonde to light brown, shoulder-length, often messy or hastily tied back

Eyes: Sharp, observant, always scanning

Clothing:

Thrifty jackets and hoodies

Simple tops, jeans, worn sneakers

Backpack containing:

Notebook

Audio recorder

Phone charger

Press badge clipped awkwardly

Overall Impression:

Cheryl looks young, earnest, and slightly out of place — like someone who hasn't learned when to stop asking yet.

Personality

Cheryl is curious, stubborn, and quietly brave — but not fearless.

She believes:

Stories matter even when they don't change outcomes

Silence is rarely accidental

Patterns tell the truth before people do

She starts polite.

Then persistent.

Then uncomfortable.

And once she realizes she's crossed a line —
she keeps going anyway.

Backstory

Cheryl didn't grow up in Arcadia Bay.

She came because:

The town had unresolved history

She wanted real reporting, not fluff

At the Gazette, she was assigned:

Community events

School features

Redevelopment stories

But she noticed:

Articles that were quietly edited down

Names that resurfaced too often

Stories that ended without explanation

She began saving personal copies of drafts.

Connection to the 2013 Storm

Cheryl suspects the official storm narrative is incomplete.

She's been researching:

Police logs

Hospital intake inconsistencies

Evacuation timelines

Nothing conclusive — yet.

But patterns don't disappear.

Connection to Barry Deskowsky

Barry knows Cheryl professionally.

He sees her as:

Well-meaning

Inexperienced

Potentially disruptive

He answers her questions carefully — giving just enough to slow her down.

Connection to Gerald Cross

Cheryl doesn't yet understand how dangerous

Gerald Cross is.

She's noticed:

Cross Industries appearing everywhere

Always indirectly

Always one step removed

Her editor once warned her:

“Some stories aren’t worth your career.”

She ignored it.

Connection to Fiz

Cheryl notices Fiz observationally, not socially.

She notices:

Where he appears

What he photographs

Who avoids him

She hasn’t approached him — yet.

Private Fear

Cheryl is afraid she’s not brave enough.

She’s already felt:

Calls go unanswered

Doors close gently

Access quietly revoked

She hasn’t decided whether she’ll push through — or learn why others stopped.

Narrative Function

Catalyst, not savior

A mirror of youthful idealism meeting consequence

The character who moves the story forward by asking the wrong questions

Cheryl represents motion in a town built on silence.

BLACKWELL STUDENT BODY

1. Lena Ortiz (18) – Dorm RA / The Grounded One

Caring, dependable, and one of the few upperclassmen everyone actually respects.
She's the dormitory RA and often acts like the “big sister” to newer students.

She keeps peace in the dorms, but sometimes vents her own loneliness to Fiz when she finds him editing videos late at night in the lounge. She is really close with Elena Ward, she even considered Elena as her sister Personality: Responsible, empathetic, quietly exhausted.

Fiz dynamic: Protective older-sister vibe; often checks in on him and Riley.

2. Tara Nguyen (17) – The Trendsetter

Half-Vietnamese, half-American, Tara is the fashion and social media queen of the new Blackwell.

She runs the popular student-run blog “Baylight”, where she covers campus life and interviews teachers, often spinning the truth for clicks. She sometimes flirts with Fiz for attention but also admires his calmness — she calls him “mysterious cinema boy.”

Personality: Confident, witty, image-obsessed.

Fiz dynamic: Lighthearted tension; frenemies with a spark of curiosity.

3. Nolan Pierce (18) – The Jock-Artist

Captain of the basketball team and surprisingly into photography.

Nolan tries to break stereotypes, balancing sports and creative work, but often gets mocked by his own teammates for it.

He respects Fiz's talent and sometimes asks him for editing tips. He also humble unlike Jake Cross and his groupies. Jake even has some rivalry around Nolan.

Personality: Honest, conflicted, trying to evolve.

Fiz dynamic: Unexpected friend; bridges the gap between cliques.

4. Pat Alvarado (17) – The Academic

Obsessed with science fairs and robotics competitions. She's always busy building drones or coding AI projects.

She's polite but blunt, often frustrated by people she considers "distractions."

Still, she secretly admires Fiz's video editing precision and once asked him to help her present her project visually.

Personality: Logical, sarcastic, precise.

Fiz dynamic: Mutual respect; intellectual camaraderie.

5. Kieran Holt (17) – The Skater Poet

Skater kid with headphones always on. He writes poetry on his board in white marker.

A loner by choice, Kieran sometimes sits near Fiz at lunch, silently sharing his fries.

There's an unspoken mutual understanding between them — both feel like they exist slightly outside the world.

Personality: Quiet, dryly humorous, introspective.

Fiz dynamic: Casual but deep non-verbal friendship.

6. Madison "Maddie" Hale (17) – The Cheerful Streamer

Runs a small ViewGrid channel where she streams games and local vlogs.

She's loud, funny, and oddly sincere — sometimes she drags Fiz into her content ("say hi to the internet, Fiz!").

Despite her bubbly exterior, she uses humor to cover up her anxiety about grades and the future.

Personality: Energetic, anxious, friendly.

Fiz dynamic: Comic relief; casual gaming buddy.

7. Dean Rojas (18) – The Skeptic

Sharp-tongued, brilliant, and skeptical of everything from school spirit to “haunted storm conspiracies.”

He’s always questioning authority and tends to debate anyone who romanticizes Arcadia Bay’s past.

He clashes with Mason a lot, but secretly admires Fiz’s ability to stay neutral.

Personality: Cynical, articulate, fiercely independent.

Fiz dynamic: Occasional intellectual rival; debates turn into strange late-night talks.

8. Iris Bellamy (16) – The Freshman Dreamer

Youngest in the dorms — shy, artistic, and often bullied by Zoey's clique.

Riley tends to protect her, and Fiz once helped her recover deleted footage for a short film project.

She now looks up to him like a big brother.

Personality: Timid, hopeful, creative.

Fiz dynamic: Protective big-brother energy; a reminder of innocence.

9. Damien “Dax” Rowe (17) – The Rebel Musician

Son of a local fisherman, plays guitar in the quad and acts like he doesn’t care about school.

He’s all attitude, denim jacket, and sarcasm — but his songs are genuinely good.

Rumor says his older brother went missing

during “the storm,” though he never talks about it.

Personality: Defiant, witty, talented.

Fiz dynamic: Distant respect; later may become a surprising ally.

10. Sandra Brooks (17) – Zoey’s Shadow

One of Zoey’s loyal followers — more quiet and observant than mean.

Sometimes, when Zoey isn’t looking, she shows flashes of guilt about how Riley and Fiz are treated.

She could become an unexpected source of information — or betrayal.

Personality: Insecure, adaptable, conflicted.

Fiz dynamic: Uncertain; possible ally hidden in the enemy camp.

11. Ezra Lang (18) – The Photographer's Rival

Talented photographer with a perfectionist streak.

He and Fiz are both in Mr. Rhys's advanced photo class and constantly compete for top marks.

He hides jealousy behind politeness and often undermines Fiz subtly during critiques. He even likes Riley silently and desperately wants to take her out. But Riley doesn't like him at all and because of this, Ezra is very...very jealous of Fiz, he even works together with Jake and his groupies in order to take Fiz down.

Personality: Ambitious, calm on the surface, quietly envious.

Fiz dynamic: Rivalry tinged with reluctant jealousy.

12. Taki Kimura (17) – The Environmental Activist

Passionate about climate change, veganism, and local history.

She's obsessed with the 2013 storm and believes "it wasn't just a natural disaster."

Her room is covered in newspaper clippings about it — which will later draw Fiz's curiosity.

Personality: Passionate, stubborn, well-meaning.

Fiz dynamic: Possible collaborator in uncovering the truth.

13. Lila West (17) – The Voice

The loudest of Zoey's group.

She's brash, sarcastic, and quick to throw insults. Lila's always the first to mock Riley and Fiz in the halls, doing Zoey's dirty work so Zoey can keep her hands "clean."

But Lila's loyalty isn't pure — she sees Zoey as a ticket to relevance. Underneath her cruelty, there's a deep insecurity about being invisible.

Personality: Outspoken, jealous, desperate for attention.

Appearance: Dyed red hair, sharp eyeliner, always chewing gum.

Fiz dynamic: Constant antagonist; secretly curious why he never fights back.

Hidden Detail: Her mother is one of Blackwell's custodians — she hides it to maintain her "cool" image.

13. Amber Clarke (17) – The Instigator

- Role in Story: Amber is the loud, obnoxious hype-woman of Zoey's clique. If Zoey delivers the sharp insult and Lila gives the physical push, Amber is the one screaming with laughter and making sure the entire hallway stops to watch. She treats Blackwell like her own personal reality show and plays the role of the hostile host.
- Personality: Brash, theatrical, and utterly lacking in boundaries. She doesn't just record from the sidelines anymore; she shoves her phone directly into people's faces. She live-narrates humiliations at top volume, using public embarrassment as a weapon. She is deeply invested in the cruel, highly-edited media she pushes out, heavily manipulating footage and throwing on humiliating graphics to maximize the damage before blasting it to the student body.

- Appearance: We drop the soft, oversized sweaters. Now, she wears bright, attention-grabbing streetwear—neon accents, bold makeup, and chunky boots. Her phone is practically an extension of her hand, complete with a blindingly bright LED ring-light case that she flashes in people's eyes to disorient them.
- Fiz Dynamic: She hates Fiz's silence because she can't get a good "clip" out of him. She actively invades his personal space, aggressively mocking him loudly in the cafeteria or quad, trying desperately to break his calm exterior so she can broadcast his reaction.

- Hidden Detail (Updated): She doesn't keep a folder of guilty candid photos anymore. Instead, she has a burner ViewGrid account where she tests out her most viciously edited smear videos before deciding if they are good enough to go on her main feed.

14. Jamie Vaughn (17) – The Filmmaker

Jamie is a quiet but passionate video creator who runs the Blackwell Visual Arts Club. He's known for his short films — moody, introspective pieces about loneliness and nostalgia — which instantly catch Fiz's attention. They bond through editing, camera gear, and their shared love for cinema.

Jamie's ambition is to make something that “finally means something,” though he's terrified of failure.

Personality: Calm, artistic, obsessive, self-critical.

Appearance: Wears headphones often, messy brown hair, corduroy jackets.

Fiz dynamic: Creative ally; they inspire and challenge each other.

Hidden Detail: His late sister was a Blackwell student — she disappeared during the 2013 storm.

15. Sienna Morales (17) – The Photographer

An intuitive, soulful photographer who recently transferred from Seattle.

She's fascinated by the textures of Arcadia Bay — decaying wood, mist, broken neon lights.

She and Fizz often find themselves shooting at the same places, sometimes in silence, sometimes in deep conversation.

She seems to sense the town's strange energy and treats photography like a spiritual act.

Personality: Dreamy, empathic, quietly intense.

Appearance: Long dark curls, oversized thrifted coats, carries an old Polaroid camera.

Fiz dynamic: Mutual admiration and subtle emotional connection — possibly a future love triangle element.

Hidden Detail: She found an undeveloped roll of film near the old lighthouse — and one picture on it shouldn't exist.

16. Caleb “Cal” Ashford (18) – The Outsider

A loner with a dark sense of humor and a sketchbook always in hand.

Cal lives off-campus in a cluttered trailer with his uncle, a local fisherman.

He often draws surreal, unsettling images of the ocean swallowing Arcadia Bay — long before knowing its real history.

Rumor says Cal’s uncle was a rescue diver during the 2013 storm and “saw things underwater.”

Personality: Eccentric, quiet, oddly wise, detached from social norms.

Appearance: Pale skin, unkempt dark hair, denim jacket full of pins.

Fiz dynamic: Strange mutual respect — Cal sees something “different” in him.

Hidden Detail: Keeps an old Polaroid photo of two girls (Max and Chloe) taped inside his sketchbook.

Blackwell Faculty Staff (2023)

1. Principal Harrison Carter

Age: 50

Occupation: Principal of Blackwell Academy

Personality: Stern, pragmatic, hiding exhaustion behind formal politeness

Backstory: Took over when Blackwell reopened in 2018. He's under pressure to maintain the academy's reputation after the "2013 incidents."

Fiz connection: Sees potential in Fiz as a quiet leader among exchange students.

Secret: Keeps confidential files about the original storm investigation, labeled "Caulfield / Price."

2. Mr. Ethan Rowe – Computer Science & Media Teacher

Age: 33

Subjects: Computer Science, Digital Media, and Creative Technology

Appearance: Clean-cut but casual; stubble, plaid shirts, messenger bag, sneakers

Personality: Energetic, tech-savvy, encouraging — the “cool” teacher everyone likes

Backstory: A former freelance video editor and indie game designer who came to teach at Blackwell in 2020. Passionate about storytelling through tech.

Fiz Connection: Becomes a mentor figure. He helps Fiz with video editing projects and gives him access to high-end editing software in the lab. He sees a lot of himself in Fiz’s quiet creativity.

Secret: He once worked for a research firm that analyzed digital anomalies found in Arcadia Bay's storm footage — including unexplained time skips in recorded data. He never talks about it.

3. Ms. Valerie Leighton – Science Teacher

Age: 42

Subjects: Environmental Science & Chemistry

Appearance: Sharp eyes, lab coat over floral blouses, short blonde hair

Personality: Intelligent, composed, slightly intimidating, but deeply ethical Backstory: Moved to Arcadia Bay in 2019 to help rebuild the town's environmental monitoring systems after the storm. Known for her tough but fair teaching style.

Fiz Connection: She likes Fiz's curiosity, though she notices his tendency to daydream. Often gives him extra lab time after school, which becomes important later.

Secret: Keeps old data from weather stations during the 2013 storm — anomalies in pressure and magnetism that no one could explain.

Sometimes, she stares at the sky as if expecting it to happen again.

4. Mr. Jonathan “Jon” Mendez – English & Creative Writing Teacher

Age: 39

Subjects: English Literature, Creative Writing

Appearance: Casual-professional; rolled sleeves, glasses, always carries a notebook

Personality: Thoughtful, introspective, sometimes distracted – an idealist hiding melancholy

Backstory: A published poet who lost his partner during the 2013 storm. He came back to Arcadia Bay to find closure through teaching.

Fiz Connection: Connects with Fiz over writing and film analysis. He's the first teacher who sees that Fiz's art isn't just technical — it's emotional.

Secret: Keeps a drawer full of unsent letters addressed to someone named "M.C." — initials that match Max Caulfield.

5. Dr. Marianne Calloway

Age: 43

Occupation: School Counselor / Psychology Teacher

Personality: Soft-spoken, analytical, empathic but enigmatic

Backstory: Joined Blackwell in 2021. She encourages students to “face their inner narratives,” but seems to probe Fiz a bit too deeply about his past and dreams.

Fiz connection: One of the few adults he feels semi-comfortable with, though something about her unnerves him.

Secret: She’s conducting her own quiet research about “shared trauma recurrence” in Arcadia Bay teens.

Bonus Optional Faculty for Depth:

Mrs. Nora Briggs – History Teacher

A nostalgic local who constantly talks about “the old Arcadia Bay before the storm.”

Coach Ryan Walker – P.E. Teacher / Sports Head

Tough but fair; pushes students to “rebuild stronger than the town did.”

6. Nurse Evelyn Moore – 47

(“The One Who Notices What Students Don’t Say”)

Age: 47

Occupation: School Nurse / Student Health Counselor

Years at Blackwell: Since reopening (2018)

Appearance

Height: ~168 cm

Build: Soft, average, comforting — never intimidating

Skin: Fair with warm undertones

Hair: Chestnut brown, tied into a low bun or loose ponytail

Eyes: Gentle hazel — perceptive, patient

Clothing:

Pale blue or white scrubs under a light cardigan

Comfortable shoes

Small silver necklace (medical symbol charm)

Always smells faintly of antiseptic and chamomile tea

Style vibe: Safe harbor energy — warmth without intrusion.

Personality

Evelyn is calm, empathetic, and dangerously perceptive.

She doesn't push. She waits.

She believes:

Pain shows up in bodies before words

Silence is often a coping mechanism

Teenagers tell the truth with posture, not speech

She never rushes students out of the infirmary.

Backstory

Evelyn moved to Arcadia Bay after losing her teenage son in a car accident years earlier.

She chose Blackwell because:

She wanted to help kids who didn't know how to ask for help

She understood grief that doesn't scream

During the storm years, she volunteered in shelters — treating shock, dehydration, and injuries that never made official records.

Connection to Fiz

Evelyn notices things others miss:

Fiz's shallow breathing when stressed
The way his hands shake slightly when overstimulated

How he stays longer than necessary, sitting quietly

She never labels him. Never diagnoses without consent.

Sometimes she simply says:

"You can sit here as long as you need."

To Fiz, the infirmary feels like the only place where he doesn't have to perform calmness.

Connection to Riley

Evelyn worries about Riley — not for physical reasons.

She's noticed:

Sleep deprivation

Tension headaches

Stress responses that mirror long-term trauma

She suspects Riley knows something she's protecting herself from.

Connection to Administration

Evelyn files reports carefully.

She knows:

Some health records are quietly monitored

Certain names draw attention

She writes honestly — but vaguely enough to protect students.

Secret

Evelyn keeps a locked drawer containing:

Old volunteer notes from 2013

Names of students she treated during evacuation

A list of symptoms that didn't make medical sense

She hasn't opened it in years.

But she hasn't thrown it away either.

Narrative Function

Emotional safe space

Adult ally without manipulation

Early detector of psychological unraveling

Evelyn represents care without agenda — rare in Arcadia Bay.

ADDITION ARCADIA BAY TOWNIES

1. Officer Darren Holt

Age: 39

Occupation: Arcadia Bay Police Department

Personality: Stubborn, weary, suspicious of outsiders

Backstory: One of the only officers who survived the 2013 disaster response. He's obsessed with unsolved reports — strange sightings, missing persons, odd light patterns near the cliffs.

Fiz connection: Keeps an eye on him after seeing him taking late-night photos near the lighthouse.

Secret: Has a file titled “Storm Phenomenon – Temporal?” in his personal drawer.

2. Daniel Everett

Age: 48

Occupation: Local handyman / boat repairer

Personality: Cynical, gruff, local conspiracy theorist

Backstory: Lost his son in the 2013 storm.

Claims the “storm wasn’t natural.”

Fiz connection: Encounters him near the pier when filming for a video project. Daniel tells him, “The Bay doesn’t forgive. It just remembers.”

Secret: He has a piece of Max’s old Polaroid camera that washed up after the storm.

3. Chief Barry Deskowsky

Head of Arcadia Bay Police Department

(“The Man Who Closes the File”)

Age: 56

Rank: Police Supervisor / Chief of Operations

Years in APD: 31

Tenure as Head: Since 2016

Appearance

Height: ~180 cm

Build: Heavyset, sturdy — shaped by years behind a desk and in patrol cars

Skin: Pale, slightly reddened by coastal weather

Hair: Thinning gray hair, always neatly parted

Facial Hair: Clean-shaven

Eyes: Muted blue, perpetually tired

Clothing:

Standard APD uniform on duty

Civilian wear: plain button-down shirts, dark slacks, practical leather shoes

Often carries a thick folder or tablet — paperwork before presence

Overall Impression:

Barry Deskowsky looks like a man built from procedures, memos, and closed doors.

He doesn't project authority — he embodies it quietly.

Personality

Barry is not aggressive, corrupt, or cruel.

He is risk-averse, controlled, and careful.

He believes:

Stability matters more than justice

Truth can be dangerous when mishandled

Some cases are better sealed than solved

He speaks in:

Policy language

Liability framing

“Best interest of the community” phrasing

Every decision he makes sounds reasonable — which makes him hard to challenge.

Backstory

Barry was a senior officer during the 2013 storm.

He:

Coordinated emergency response

Approved evacuation summaries

Signed off on final incident reports

After the storm:

Federal investigations faded

Media attention died down

Arcadia Bay wanted normalcy

Barry learned that order survives only when chaos is contained.

When he became head of APD, he prioritized:

Quiet resolutions

Case closures

Minimal press exposure

Not because he was bribed —

but because he believed reopening old wounds would destroy the town.

Connection to Gerald Cross

Barry does not trust Gerald Cross — but he understands him.

They share:

An interest in stability

A preference for quiet outcomes

Gerald never issues commands.

He offers resources, lawyers, and options.
Barry chooses the option that avoids headlines.

Connection to Blackwell Academy

Barry strongly prefers:

Blackwell handling incidents internally

Police involvement only as a last resort

Officially: to protect minors.

Unofficially: to protect reputations.

Private Conflict

Barry knows:

Some storm-era reports were incomplete

Some witness statements were simplified

Some evidence never entered official storage

He tells himself:

“It was the right decision at the time.”

He isn't sure anymore — but reopening the past now would cost everything.

Narrative Function

The legal wall truth collides with

The embodiment of institutional silence
A man who ends stories by filing them away
Barry Deskowsky doesn't chase the truth.
He waits for it to stop knocking.

CORE CHARACTER APPEARANCES

Riley Jones (17, American)

Appearance: Pale skin, auburn hair in a messy bun, green-gray eyes, faint freckles. Usually wears a brown corduroy jacket over soft sweaters, worn jeans, and ankle boots. Wears an old silver bracelet that belonged to her mother.

Style vibe: Earthy, introspective — “coffee shop artist” meets coastal melancholy.

Mason Cranstain (18, American)

Appearance: 180 cm, tan skin, short sandy-blond hair, hazel eyes. Always in layered flannels over graphic tees, torn jeans, and scuffed Converse. Carries a beat-up backpack with band patches.

Style vibe: 2000s punk nostalgia; messy but charming.

Pete Lindson (18, American)

Appearance: 178 cm, fair skin, dark brown wavy hair, blue eyes. Wears an olive parka, beanie, and hiking boots. Keeps a small keychain camera on his bag.

Style vibe: Pacific Northwest calm — utilitarian, warm, practical.

Zoey Brookes (17, American)

Appearance: 170 cm, blonde straight hair (dyed icy platinum), flawless makeup, blue eyes.

Always wears luxury brands — tailored crop jackets, pleated skirts, and heeled boots. Has a designer tote and gold necklace.

Style vibe: “Modern Victoria Chase” — sharp, rich, fashion-forward.

Alice Carter (17, American)

Appearance: Tan Skin, Curly brown hair, nervous smile, wears layered sweaters, collared shirts, and long skirts.

Style vibe: Academic, vintage, slightly awkward.

Brandon Montgomery (19, American)

Appearance: Fair Skin, Tall, gaunt, dark eyes, tousled brown hair, often in an oversized coat or hoodie, wears a faded blue jeans and sneakers and got tatoos all over his hands.

Style vibe: Drifter aesthetic — haunted but gentle.

Elise Turner-Jones – 31

(Riley's Stepmother – “The Outsider”)

Appearance:

Graceful and meticulously put-together. Elise has shoulder-length blonde hair usually tied in a loose bun or tucked behind a pair of gold earrings. Her skin is porcelain-pale, with faint lines under her eyes from sleepless nights. Light blue eyes that always seem to be searching for approval. She dresses in soft, neutral tones — cream blouses, tailored beige coats, pearl bracelets — and her perfume (a blend of jasmine and white musk) lingers in every room she enters. When she smiles, it feels like a photograph — perfectly composed but never quite real.

Jake Cross – 18

(The Bully – “The Golden Boy”)

Appearance:

Tall and broad-shouldered, with perfectly styled golden-brown hair that catches the hallway lights. His blue-gray eyes have a calculating glint, like he's always sizing up the room. His jawline is sharp, his smile disarming yet dangerous. He wears his letterman jacket like armor — crisp, clean, and embroidered with his name. Beneath it, simple white tees and fitted jeans. A faint scar runs above his right eyebrow, a remnant of an old fight he claims he “won easily.” Always smells faintly of cologne and aftershave. When he walks into a room, conversations shift — partly from admiration, partly from fear.

(The Enforcer)

Appearance:

Solid build with strong arms and a neck thicker than most. Buzz-cut dark brown hair, olive skin tone, and tired hazel eyes that contrast his loud personality. He usually wears the team's gray athletic hoodie with rolled sleeves and scuffed sneakers. His hands are always moving — spinning a basketball, tapping against lockers, or cracking his knuckles. There's a faded bruise on his cheek from last week's practice and a thin scar under his chin. His laugh is deep, unfiltered, and echoes down the hallways — but when he's quiet, he looks strangely thoughtful, almost sad.

Chase Whitmore – 17

(The Mouthpiece)

Appearance:

Lean and fashion-conscious, with wavy dirty-blond hair that looks deliberately unkempt. His skin has a warm tan glow from too many hours spent under sunlight taking selfies. His eyes are a striking steel blue, often hidden behind oversized sunglasses perched on his head. Always dressed in brand-name streetwear — pastel hoodies, spotless sneakers, silver chains — and his phone never leaves his hand. There's a restless energy in his movements, as if he's always performing for an invisible audience. Even his posture screams look at me — until you notice how quickly his confidence fades when no one's watching.

Olivia Calder — 17

Appearance :

Height: ~168 cm

Build: Slim, slightly underweight

Posture: Relaxed but withdrawn; shoulders often slightly forward

Face & Features

Pale, cool-toned skin (not porcelain — looks like she avoids sunlight) Oval face with soft but tired features

Dark gray eyes (almost black in low light)

Heavy-lidded gaze; rarely wide-eyed

Thin lips, usually neutral or faintly downturned

Small nose, slightly sharp bridge

Hair

Jet-black hair

Long, straight, slightly uneven at the ends

Natural texture, rarely styled

Usually worn loose or tucked behind one ear

Sometimes tied low with a black hair tie

Makeup

Smudged black eyeliner (intentionally imperfect)

Light mascara

No bright makeup, no contour

Occasionally dark plum or black lip balm

Makeup looks slept-in, not freshly applied

Clothing Style

Palette: Black, charcoal, dark purple, muted gray

Typical outfit:

Black Tank Top or Black Band Shirt

Long-sleeve striped shirt underneath (black/gray)

Short black skirt or ripped black jeans

Black tights or fishnets

Worn black combat boots (scuffed soles)

Accessories:

Black lace choker or thin chain necklace

Silver rings (simple, slightly tarnished)

Canvas tote or battered leather backpack

Overall vibe:

Soft goth / grief-core / quiet intensity

Theodore “Theo” Jones - 16

Appearance :

Age: 16

Height: ~172 cm

Build: Lean, narrow shoulders, not fully filled out yet

Posture: Slight slouch; hands often in pockets

Face & Features

Light olive skin tone

Narrow face with youthful softness

Brown eyes with noticeable under-eye shadows

Avoidant eye contact

Slightly chapped lips

Expression often distant or preoccupied

Hair

Dark brown hair

Medium length, uneven

Naturally wavy but unstyled

Often looks like it hasn't been cut in months

Falls into his eyes when he looks down

Clothing Style

Palette: Gray, navy, muted green, faded black

Typical outfit:

Oversized hoodie (gray or dark blue)

Worn zip-up jacket or flannel layered on top

Faded jeans (knees slightly stretched)

Old sneakers (Converse or Vans style)

Accessories

Cheap digital watch or none at all

Backpack with frayed straps

Occasionally wired earbuds (one ear only)

Details

Always looks slightly cold, even indoors

Fingers often fidgeting with sleeves or drawstrings

Clothes look chosen for comfort and invisibility, not style

Overall vibe:

Quiet kid / emotionally withdrawn / background presence

Appearance :

Age: 52

Height: ~188 cm (6'2")

Build: Broad-shouldered, solid, well-maintained — not muscular, but unmistakably strong

Presence: Dominating without effort

Gerald Cross looks like a man who has never had to rush.

Face & Features

Square, authoritative face with sharp cheekbones

Strong jawline, clean-shaven or with precisely trimmed stubble (never messy)

Thin lips that rarely smile — when they do, it feels calculated

Deep-set steel-blue eyes, cold and observant

His gaze doesn't linger emotionally — it evaluates

Faint lines around his eyes and mouth, not from stress, but from control

A small, barely noticeable scar near his left temple — never explained

His face gives the impression of someone who has watched crises happen from a distance — and benefited.

Hair

Dark brown hair streaked with silver at the temples

Always neatly combed back

No stray strands, no casual styling

Looks like it's cut every two weeks, minimum

His hair alone suggests discipline and money.

Eyes & Expression

Eyes rarely widen, never dart

Maintains direct eye contact just long enough to assert dominance

When listening, he tilts his head slightly — not out of curiosity, but calculation

Blinks slowly

Makes people feel like they've said too much even when they haven't

Clothing Style

Palette: Charcoal, navy, black, muted gray

Fit: Impeccable tailoring — everything fits perfectly

Typical outfit:

Custom-fitted suit (Italian cut, understated luxury)

Crisp white or pale blue dress shirt

Slim, dark tie — never flashy

Polished leather dress shoes (always spotless)

Heavy wool overcoat in colder months

Accessories:

Minimalist luxury wristwatch (no flashy branding)

Gold wedding ring — worn even though his marriage is emotionally distant

Leather briefcase or sleek tablet portfolio

Nothing about him ever looks accidental.

Scent

Subtle, expensive cologne — wood, leather, something faintly metallic

Lingers just long enough after he leaves a room to remind people he was there

Body Language

Stands perfectly upright

Hands often clasped behind his back or resting calmly at his sides

Never fidgets

Never checks his phone nervously — when he checks it, it's intentional

Moves slowly, deliberately — like time bends to him, not the other way around

When Gerald Cross enters a space:

Conversations lower

Postures straighten

People become aware of their own breathing

Overall Impression

Gerald Cross looks like:

A man who signs papers that change lives

Someone who doesn't shout because he doesn't need to

The kind of authority that doesn't announce itself — it assumes compliance

He doesn't look dangerous in an obvious way.

He looks untouchable.

If you want next:

Gerald Cross voice & speech pattern

Gerald's first canonical interaction (with Jake, Principal Carter, or Richard Jones)

Gerald's private habits (what he does when no one is watching)

Just say the word.

BLACKWELL FACULTY

Mr. Owen Rhys (33, Welsh-American)

Appearance: Medium height, scruffy dark hair, stubble beard, warm brown eyes. Usually wears Style vibe: Blue-collar conspiracy loner.

Chief Barry Deskowsky — (48, American)

Age: 56

Height: ~180 cm

Build: Heavyset, solid — weight carried from years of desk work and long shifts, not neglect Barry Deskowsky has the look of a man shaped by routine.

Pale skin with a slightly ruddy tone from coastal air

Thinning gray hair, always neatly parted and combed flat

Clean-shaven face, square but softened by age

Muted blue eyes, permanently tired, rarely expressive

He dresses plainly:

Standard APD uniform when on duty, always pressed

Civilian wear consists of plain button-down shirts, dark slacks, and practical leather shoes

Often carries a folder, clipboard, or tablet tucked under one arm

His posture is upright but stiff, as if his body learned discipline before comfort.

Barry doesn't look intimidating — he looks official.

Cheryl Brandstone — (24, British - American)

Age: 24

Height: ~165 cm

Build: Slim, restless, always slightly tense

Cheryl looks like someone who hasn't settled into adulthood yet — and doesn't want to.

Light skin with warm undertones

Dark blonde to light brown hair, shoulder-length, usually messy or tied back without care

Sharp, observant eyes that move constantly

Minimal makeup, if any

Her clothing is practical and secondhand:

Thrifted jackets or hoodies

Simple tops, jeans, worn sneakers

A backpack always slung over one shoulder

She almost always carries:

A notebook with bent pages

A phone with a cracked screen

A press badge clipped awkwardly where it doesn't quite belong

She looks out of place in official spaces — and too alert everywhere else.

Nurse Evelyn Moore — (47, Irish)

Age: 47

Height: ~168 cm

Build: Soft, average, comforting

Evelyn has a presence that immediately lowers tension.

Fair skin with gentle lines around her eyes

Chestnut brown hair, usually tied into a low bun or loose ponytail

Warm hazel eyes that linger just long enough to feel seen

Calm, steady expressions

She wears:

Light blue or white scrubs

A soft cardigan layered over them

Comfortable shoes

A small silver necklace with a medical charm
She smells faintly of antiseptic and chamomile tea.

Her posture is relaxed, slightly forward-leaning — as if she's always listening.

Evelyn looks like someone you could sit next to in silence without feeling rushed.

Marcus Hale — (41, American)

Age: 41

Height: ~182 cm

Build: Solid, broad-chested, worn strength

Marcus looks like someone who's been standing too long for too many years.

Medium-brown skin, weathered by night shifts and coastal air

Short-cropped black hair, slightly receding

Salt-and-pepper stubble, often uneven

Dark brown eyes — alert, tired, observant

He wears:

Black Blackwell Academy security uniform
Utility belt with radio, flashlight, and keys clipped in the same order
Worn black boots with scuffed toes
A black windbreaker over his uniform during late shifts
His posture is relaxed but ready.
He leans against walls, door frames, railings — never fully at rest.
Marcus doesn't look threatening.
He looks like someone who notices everything.

IN GAME SOCIAL MEDIA

Visual & Status Platforms (Instagram / Snapchat Parody)

- Prism: The dominant photo and lifestyle app.

This is where the Blackwell hierarchy is maintained. Zoey and Tara obsess over their Prism feeds, posting heavily curated aesthetics.

- Glimpse: The ephemeral, disappearing-video app. This is Amber's weapon of choice. She uses Glimpse stories to shove her camera in people's faces and broadcast public humiliations, knowing the evidence will delete itself in 24 hours.

Short-Form Video (TikTok Parody)

- Flicker: The endless scrolling video app. Chase uses Flicker to post heavily edited, out-of-context clips of people like Fiz and Riley, throwing on mocking text and trending audio to make them go viral around the school.

Microblogging & Gossip (Twitter / X Parody)

- Echo: Text-based updates where the school's gossip spreads the fastest. People subtweet each other here constantly. If Jake gets into a fight, the rumors hit Echo before the principal even hears about it.

Voice, Text & Gaming Communities (Discord Parody)

- Nexus: The go-to platform for servers, voice channels, and role management. Given Fiz's background in coding and gaming, he probably spends his late nights building and managing a quiet, heavily configured Nexus server for his inner circle (Mason, Pete, and Maddie) to hang out in away from the Blackwell drama.

Forums & Conspiracies (Reddit / 4chan Parody)

- DeepThread: The anonymous message boards. Taki Kimura (the environmental activist) and Daniel Everett (the townie) definitely lurk on DeepThread, pouring over blurry photos, old police logs, and wild theories about what really caused the 2013 storm.

Music Streaming (Spotify Parody)

- Aura: Fiz would have his headphones plugged in, listening to The Strokes on Aura while walking the halls, ignoring Zoey's clique.

ViewGrid: The Platform Overview

ViewGrid is the undisputed giant of live streaming. Originally built for gamers, it has evolved into a massive hub for "IRL" (In Real Life) vlogs, digital art streams, and podcasting.

- The Aesthetic: Instead of Twitch’s iconic purple, ViewGrid features a sleek Obsidian Black and Neon Cyan color scheme.
- The UI: True to its name, the homepage is called "The Grid," a literal mosaic of live thumbnails that constantly shift in size based on who has the most current viewers.

Real-World (Twitch)	ViewGrid Equivalent	Example in Dialogue
Streamer	Gridder or Host	"She’s one of the top Gridders in the state."

Subscribers	Locked-In or Locks	"Thank you for the Tier 1 Lock, you're the best!"
Bits / Donations	Pixels or Volts	"Whoa, 500 Pixels! Thanks for the support!"
Raiding	Flooding	"We're ending the stream guys, let's go Flood another channel!"
Emotes	Tags	"Spam the hype Tags in the chat!"

How the Blackwell Cast Uses It

Maddie Hale (The Wholesome Grind)

Maddie's channel, Maddie_HaleStorm, is her sanctuary. She streams cozy indie games, competitive shooters, and occasionally "Just Chatting" streams where she does her homework live. She desperately cares about her "Pixel count" and subscriber goal, using it as a metric for her self-worth. She's the one who will aggressively pull Fiz into the frame, shouting, "Say hi to the Grid, Fiz!"

Amber Clarke (The Toxic IRL Streamer)

While Amber mainly uses apps like Prism and Glimpse for quick bullying, she occasionally goes live on ViewGrid using the "IRL Mobile" category. She uses it to broadcast Blackwell parties, cafeteria drama, or confrontations, treating real people like content. Her chat is famously toxic, egging her on to do crueller things for "Volts."

Hafizh "Fiz" Naufal Raditya (The Lurker)

Fiz doesn't stream, but he has an account (probably something low-key like Fiz_NR). He uses it to quietly watch speedruns, coding tutorials, or just to keep Maddie's viewer count up by leaving her stream open in a tab while he edits video projects.

 Rules for you Gemini Pro :

- I expect you to have a really good memory about the story which I would be given now, so you must follow the story without any mistakes or flaws

- Do not end the episode without me saying so, If i put like {Good Times, End Of Episode} which means thats the end, but if I havent...then it is not the end.
- I expect you to follow the story very carefully without any flaws or mistakes
- I want to make the format of the dialogue like this :
Riley : (bla bla bla)
Mason : (bla bla bla)
- The only dialogue you provide is coming from another character, not Fiz. Fiz will be played entirely by me.

- Because this is Life Is Strange universe, this is rated M for Mature a.k.a 17+, in other words you are allowed to use swear words or even the F - Word for characters in this universe, you can use it as many as you can to support the story. And then all of the real life brands doesn't exist in this universe cause this is Life Is Strange universe, therefore the references to real life pop culture do exist in this world just like in the original game.
- I want you to deep dive every character
- Do not mention any kind of real life brands okay because this is Life Is Strange universe not a real world universe.

- Every time and places about the story which is using a format time and place will be mentioned by me only, not you. So you dont mention the time, places, weather, of the story okay because it will be mention by me. For example Im the one who allowed to mention the place and time using the syntax [] , not you okay?

Do You understand? Do not start yet

Listen i have a project its maybe an intercatave website game choice. What do you think? Gem you are a game developer website so you must think of an idea of this....and i wanna execute this on claude code
